Attachment of correspondence from Ruth Grube to Carol Yelle:

The language that was used on the IEP's was common for most districts because IEPs were due during the first few months and we had "forgiveness" on timelines from the U.S. Department of Education. There was not quick guidance from the DESE and we had to ensure that students' needs were being cared for. We were one of the first districts that held annual meetings in March and throughout the closure and that was so valuable as we re-enter school.

After April 27th (actually May 4th), the language should have been removed from the N1's on the IEP's for any meetings held after that. Unfortunately, a teacher forgot to remove the language and we had to issue a letter of assurance to parents who it impacted.

It was not a community issue, it was an individual issue that related to a minimal amount of parents. SpedWatch and Ellen Chambers' were doing their jobs if it was brought to their attention but there not a concern from our district. I have not heard from any parents who were concerned about the language, and if SEPAC heard from them I would have liked it if you reached out so I could quell their concerns. As you know, the more that parents wait for their concerns to be heard, the more anxious they may become. It was a surprise when your letter was read at the school committee requesting an investigation when we did not have an opportunity to talk. We should continue to work as collaboratively with the common goals of supporting children and look forward to the forum.

Laurie and I are coordinating our schedules and will be back to you for a date to chat with parents very soon. Be well, Ruthie
